I would state for the information of the enquirers that they will find substantially the machine now offered by soveral precenting inventors, described in the 10th volume of the Repertory of Arts, invented by Samuel Benthan, in the year 1791. A lifer machine was patented in this country by one Euglen, some six teen years since, and another one put up by Albert Rich ands, of West Troy, N. Y., and absundond about the some time. It ought to satisfy the public to know that after fifty eight years experimenting upon these machines, not one in use is of any value for the purposes contemplated.

"It is well pait," replied the cold and cautious voice in the assembly. "A year, at any rate, would have clapsed between the present bettething and the damsel's marriage. If the young must, before the dansel's marriage. "Yes, yes," said they, "it is but just.— Let the minerale produce three thousand livres, and he shall have his bride. Neighbor Niccoii, it is a fair proposal; allow us to intercede for Fran-cesco, and beg your ascent?" "Sirs," said France-co, and beg your assent?" "Sirs," said Fran-ce-co, in perplexity mingled with anger, "the sum of three thousand livres"—he was interrupted by of three thousand livres"—he was interrupted by another forced laugh of derision. "It is a fair property," repeated the relations: "agree, neighbor Niccoli, agree?" "I nave," said Niccoli, disdainfully. It is agreed?" to have the Niccoli, disdainfully. It is agreed?" to plaid Francesco, in a burst of laughty indignation; and with a swelling heart he withdrew.

A very remarkable change appeared to take place from that moment in the character and habits of the minerals. He mit only deserted the place from that moment in the character and anotics of the minerale. He not only deserted the company of his riotous associates, but even that of the few respectable persons to whose houses he had of tained admission, either by his talents for singing, or the companitive propriety of his conduct. Day after day he labored in his precarious duct. Day after day he labored in his precarious avocation. The changes of the seasons wase not now admitted as excuses. The storm did not draw him to the wine shed, and the raim did not confine him to his but. Day after day, and otten night after night, he was to be found in the field—on the mountains—by the sides of the rain courses—on the shores of the torrent. He rarely indulged himself even in the rectation of meeting his mistress, for whom all this labor was submitted to. Gold, not as a means but an end, seemed to be his thought by day and his dream by night—the object and end of his occutence. When they did meet in darkness, and mystery, it was but to ovelange a few hurried sentences of hope and contout, and after reliance entences of hope and comfort, and affect belian revenes. It was but to overlange a few lunried centences of hope and content, and affect reliance open fortune. On these occasions, tears, and trablings, and hysterical sobbings, sometime tall, on her part, at once the hollowness of he words and the weakness of her constitution; but on his, all was, or seemed to be, enthusiasm and steadfast expectation.

Days and weeks, however, passed by—moons solled away—the year was drawing to its wane, and a great part of the enormous sum was still in the womb, of the mountains. Day by day, week by week, and mouth by month, the hopes of the minerals became fainter. He could no lorger bestow the confort which did not cheer even his dreams. Gloony and sad, he could only strain his mistress in his arms, without uttering as word when she made an inquiry respecting his progress, and then hurry away to resume, mechanically, his hopeless task.

It is strange, sometimes an awful thing, to look into the mystery of the female mind.

Leila's health had received a shock from the circumstances we have recorded, which left her three pale, and her limbs weak, for many mouths; and to this physical infimity was now added the effect of those dumb, but too eloquent, interviews with her lover. The lower he sunk in despondency, however, and the more desperategrew their affairs, the higher her spirits rese, as if to quell and control their fortune. Her hopes seemed to grow in proportion with his fears, and the strongth which descreed him went over as an ally and upperfer to her weakness. Even her bodily bealth received its direction from her mind. Her nerves seemed to recover their tone, her cheek its hue, and her eyo its brilliancy. The cold and sluggish inagination of a man is unacquainted with health of the resources of a woman in such circumstances. Despointed in her dependence on fortune and cascalty, Lelia betook herself to the alture and

The year touched upon its close; and the sum which the gold-sceker had amassed, although great almost to a miracle, was still far—very far from sufficient. The last day of the year arrived, ushered in by storm, and thunderings and lightnings; and the evening fell cold and dark upon the despairing labors of Francisco. He was on the side of the mountain opposite Niccoll's house; and, as daylight died on the valley, he saw with inexpressable bitterness of soul, by the number of lights in the windows, that the fete-was not forgotten. Some trifling success, however, induced him, like a drowning man grassing at a struw, to continue his scarch. till the bell of the distant church should silence their hopes forever.

His access continued. He was working with the pick-axe, and had discovered a very small perpendicular vein; and it was just possible that this, although altogether inadequate in itself, might be crossed at a greater depth, by a horizontal one, and thus form one of the grapp, or nests, in which the ore is plentiful and easily extracted. To work, however, was difficult, and to work long, impossible. His strength was abnost exhausted in the storm beat flercely in his face; and the darkness increased every moment. His heart wholly failed him; his limbs trombled; a cold perspiration bedowed his brow; and, as the last rays of failed him; his limbs trombled; a cold perspi-nation bedewed his brow; and, as the last rays of daylight departed from the mountain-side he fell senseless upon the ground.

How long he remaind in this state he did not know; but he was recalled to life by a sound re-sembling, as he imagined, a human cry. The storm howled more widly than ever along the side of the mountain, and it was now pitch dark; side of the mountain, and it was now pitch dark; but on turning round his head he saw, at a little distance above where he lay, a small steady light. Francesco's heart began to quake. The light advanced towards him, and he perceived that it was borne by a figure arrayed in white from head to foot. "Lelia!" cried he in amazement, mingled with superstitions terror as he recognized the features of his young fair mistres.
"Waste not time in words," said she, much may be done, and I have the most perfect assurance that now at least I am not deceived. Up and be of good heart. Work, for here is light. I will sit down in the shelter, bleak though it be, of the cliff, and aid you with my prayers, since I cannot with my hands."

Francesco seized the axe, and stirred, half with

"Slake haste—unike haste!" she said, "the time is almost come—I shall be wanted—I am wanted—I—I can stay no longer—farwelt" Francesco looked up, but the light was already gone.

It was so strange, this sudden descrition! If determined to go, why did she go alone?—mane, as she must have been, that his remaining in the dark could be of no use. Could it be that her heart had changed, the moment har hopes had vanished? It was a bitter and ungenerous thought—nevertheless, it served to brille the speed with which Prancesco at first aprang forward to overtake his mistress. He had not gone far, however, when a sudden thrull arrested his progress. His heart coased to beat, he grew foint, and would have fallen to the ground, but for the support of a rock, against which he staggered. When he recovered, he retraced his stops as a countely as it

He knew not whether he found the exact spot on which Lelia had sat, but he was ance of the surrounding localities; and, it she was safe of the surrounding localities; and, it she was still there, her white dress would no doubt gleam even through the thick night which surrounded her.

With a lightened heart—for, compared with the plantom of the mind which had presented itself, all things seemed endurable—he began again to descend the mountain. In a place so singularly wild, where the rocks were piled around in combinations at once fantastic and sublime, it was not wonderful that the light carried by his mistress should be wholly invisible to him, even had it been much nearer than was by this time prob-

Francesco lingered at the door. He would fain have seen but the skirt of Leha's mantle before departing, "She is not in the room," cried a voice in alarm. Francesco's heart quaked. Presently the whole house was astir. The sound of feet running here and there was heard, and agitated voices called out her name. The nost moment the old man rushed out of the room, and laying both his hands upon Francesco's shoulders, looked wildly in his face. "Know you aught of my daughter?" said ho. "Speak, I conjune you, in the name of the Blessed Saviour! Tell me that you have manied her, and I will fogive and bless you! Speak!—will you not speak? A single word! Where is my daughter? Where is my Lelin—my life—my light—my hope—my child—my child!" The minerale started, as if from a dream, and looked around, apparently without comprehending what had passed. A strong shudder then shook his frame for an instant. "Lights!" said he; "torches!—every one of you! Follow me!" and he rushed out mot the night. He was speedily overtaken by the whole of the company, amounting to more than twelve men, with lighted torches, that fined like meteors in the storn. They at length reached the place he sought, and by the light of the torches, someting while was seen at the base of the clift. It was Leha, She leaned her beek against the rock; one hand was pressed upon her licart, like a person who shrinks with cold and in the other she held the lamp, the flaune of which had expired in the socket. Francisco throw himself on his knees at one side, and the old man at the other, while a light as strong and the old man at the other, while a light as strong and the other was shed by the torches upon the spot.—

We learn by the last steamer, that gossip in Lordon affirms, that a gentleman who has been somewhat notorious to the literary and theatrical circles of this city, is in prison at Geneva, for undue pertinacity in the pursuit of a wife under difficulties. It appears that he made proposals of marriage in London, to the niece of one of the wealthiest London bankers, largely connected with this country, who had £80,000 in her own right. The proposals were declined and cope with this country, who had £50,000 in her own right. The proposals were declined, and soon after the lady left for the Continent. She was followed by the enamoted swain to Geneva. Here she was one day informed by letter, that some formality in regard to her passport required that she should go in person to a certain place therein designated. She followed the directions, and more cutering the house, she found only retherein designated. She followed the directions, and upon entering the house, she found only present her London rejected, who immediately locked the door, and producing a pair of pistols, theatened—not to destroy himself if she continued cruel, but to shoot ker, unless she either married him or divided her fortune with him. Neither of these reasonable requests being acceptable to the lady, she temporized with the gentleman, until her maid, who had been alarmed at her absence, sought her with some of the police, and found her in the above unpleasant category. The lady was released, and the unhappy swain, who had loved not wisely non-to-well, was sent to cool his ardor in a prison.—N. Y. Tribane.

The room was bandsonely emamented, and the light was admitted both from ample windows and from three skylights above. One of the cabinets had recently been placed in the thorny. The framework was of mahogany, and in the maple panels, covered with glass, were inserted choice bronze medals, commentative of events in ancient times, and which were deposited through the agency of Mr. Vattemare.

Mr. Jefferson's library, embracing about 7000 volumes, was purchased in 1815 for $23,000; and this, we believe, formed the nucleus of the 50,000 volumes which have accumulated. Congress has, for a series of years, annually appropriated five or six thousand dollars for the purchase of books and papers; and it is estimated that these have cost the Government, in addition to the Jefferson purchase, about $20,000.

However, many of these volumes, we learn, were kept in two small rooms adjoining the library. Among them were $000 law books, and 12, 2000 other works. These, it is reported, were saved; if so, the number of volumes destroyed is $5,000, some or which cannot be replaced.

James Maxwell, of Baraboo, bas been suggested as a proper person by the Sentinel for one of the Commissioners of Public Works.—Madiso The suggestion was made by a corresponder and not by the Sentinei. We are quite content to leave the choice of these officers to the Legislature without venturing any suggestions. THE ROADS.—The roads are now bare and smooth and hard as a ledge. We constantly see sleighs in our streets; but they are sleighs on their way to or, from some place up or down the river, on which the sleighing is excellent, there being no spots of bare ground at all.—Minnessta Pioneer.

What is the use of living away up there, if they can't have sleighing in the winter!

U. S. Count.-We publish, at the request of the Clerk of the Court, the following brief statement of the important tax title case, recently decided,that of R. H. McKibbon et al, vs. Andrew Pau et al, in ejectment: This was an electment for eighty acres of land, described according to government sulvey. The plaintiffs offered in evidence a deed to themselves secuted in Illinois in June, 1850, and acknowledged before a Justice of the Peace in August of the same year, and certified by the Olerk of the Court. Appended to this deed was another certificate of acknowledgment, bearing the same date, which the defendants proposed to prove was done since suit brought, which offer the Court rejected s immaterial, as the first acknowledgment was sufficient, and even if not, a deed may be acknowledged since suit brought, and read in evidence, ecording to authorities.

The defeudants offered in evidence a tax deed agned by Milton B. Cushing, Clerk of the Board of Supervi-ors. The law requires the deed to be executed in the name of the Territory of Wisconin. The granting part of the deed was, " I, Milton B. Cushing, in the name of the Territory of the State of Wisconsin, do grant, sell, &c."-Whereas, it should be, "The Territory of Wisonsin doth grant, sell, &c." It is the same as the deed executed in pursuance of a power of at-torney, which should be the deed of the principal The land law of Congress contains similar directions for the execution of the patents by the Pres--that is, the granter is the United States. Hogs—To-day, after the most diligent inquirynt some of the largest establishments, we were unable to hear of any sales. Buyers and sellers stand off, and refuse either to mistance or recede. The price ofered is $1 506,84 50, dishing on loop weighing one and under 209. There are yet about 5,000 to come in. Somewhere in the neighborhood of 4,000 will core the operations of the sesson, being about one-inflof last year's product, and a little over a titled of that office sesson previous. One great cause of this falling oil, isto be found in the fact, that since March last, more loops have been shipped South, on account of the good prices they bear, than at any former time. The city consumption Bu also been large. One large establishment alone, in this place, since the date mentioned, has had operations in this way to the amount of $30,000.

The Adhbrook House, on Browleay, has cut this geason 17,000. This establishment has eased purchasing under the present high prices. By to-morrow, perhaps, we may be able to state a compromise between buyer add seller.

REMARKABLE. AT Mrs,——Soirce on Tuesday evening, there was young gentleman whose brilliant appearance attracted gen cral attention. His large, dark, expressive opes were only equalled in beauty by the the thick, glorious luxuriance of bis hair, which wasdark and glossy as the wing of a raten. The elequence of his aspect in this respect was the more stonishing to parties present, since it was well known that previous to his trip to——, some months before, and from which he had just returned, he was nearly, if not quite bold, in consequence of a long and severe illness, which resulted in nearly plunging him into his grave. Curiosity became at length so strong and universal, that the gentleman was prevailed upon by the fair hostess to explain the masters which he didafter a few introductory remarks, in the fol owing words : "Before Leaving -----," said he, "I provided mysélf with a few bottles of Johnson's HAIR RESTORATIVE, in hop that the altitues attributed to it might touch my case, and thus preserve me from perpetual baldness. Nor was I disap-pointed. Ere I had used it a week, my decaying hair ceased falling out; within two months a new crop began to show itself; and he six weeks I could beast of as fine a liced of hair as any gentlemen of my acquaintance."

"But where can this wonderfutarticle be obtained?" cried is auditors, in a breath-"Of Jourson, the proprietor, 151 East Water Street, and of all respectable denggists. The price is very low-only not cents a bottle. Give it a trial, and you will find with me, that while the Hair Restorative is extant, no one need be bald " CITY MARSHAL.

Kossuth looked upon this as an official act of the Consul, and replied, and took a different view of the case; assuming that demonstrations of such a nature cannot be looked upon with any disfavor by the American government. He then stated that, being unwilling to be in a position of disa-greement with the American authorities in port, that might involve them in embarrassment, he would leave the ship at Gibraltar, and proceed to England, and thence by private conveyance to the U. An amendment was proposed, inviting Kossuth within the Bar of the House.

Mr. Brooks stated that he should not vote for the resolution, as it was intended to be a political compliment. He was surprised that Mr. Giddings favored it, when he knew, if carried out, it would result in war. He thought Mr. G. was always in favor of peace.

Mr. Bayley did not think the passage of the resolution a committal to Kossuth' docurines. If it was, he would tests with all his energy, a connection of the Government with the doctrine, for it would be a death blow to the liberties of the country. The doctrine was unconstitutional. A misunderstanding was evidently impressed upon the people's minds, that the Government on account of the proceedings already taken, stood somowhat committed to the doctrine. I REPARE B from Rennet, or the fourth Stomuch of the Ox. after directions of Baron Liebig, the great Physiological Chemist, by J. S. Houghton, M. D., Philadelphia, Pa.

Dr. Carpenter's standard work on Physiology, which is in the library of every Physician, and is used as a Text-Book in all the Colleges, is full of evidence similar to the aquov, respecting the remarkable Digestive power of Pepsin, and the fact that it may be readly separated from the stomach of the calf or ox, and used for experiments in Artificial Digestion, or as a remedy for disease of the Stomach, and deficient secretion of Gastric Juice.

All modern works on Chemistry, Materia Medica, and Physiology, and all good Medical Dictionaries, describe the character and properties of Parista, and state many interesting details respecting it.

The fact that an Artificial Digestive Fluid, or Gastric Juice, perfectly resembling the natural fluid, may be readisided, perfectly resembling the natural fluid, may be readity prequend, does not domit of question. The only wonder

Gentlemen of the Senate and Assembly:

It is made the 'duty of the Executive of this State, by the Constitution,' to communicate to the Legislature, at every session, the condition of the State, and recommend such matters to their further consideration, as he may deem expedient."

Having entered upon the discharge of the duties of the office so recently as the 5th day of the present fromth, it will be perceived how impossible it will be for me to communicate the condition of the State from the transactions of the pastyear, about which Leannot be expected to have any personal knowledge; and I am only able to discharge the duty at all, by a very brief examination of the books and pepers. If the Executive office, and the reports recently made from the various Departments of State.

From the very short time allotted me, for the preparation of this, my first message to the Legislature, I shall ask your indulgence. If the consideration of this affairs of the State Government shall be less general and various than would otherwise be usual in each cases; and shall feel excused, under the circumstances, if such matters only as are of the meat marked and obvious interest to the State at large, are herein noticed and presented. You will have before you all the reports for the past year, which have been made by the officers having the control of the financial concerns of the State, so that, by a thorough and careful examination of the details, any apparent defects in the matters of this communication may be cured and supplied.

From the reports of the Treasurer and Secreta-defects in the matters of this communication may be cured and supplied.

From the reports of the Treasurer and Secretary of State, herewith presented, it will be seen, that the fiscal concerns of the State, for the year ending 31st of December, 1851, are not in a very creditable condition. By reason of the want of fonds, available for such purposes, in the hands of the Treasurer, the allowances and special appropriations made by the last Legislatine, and the ordinary and current expenses of the year proviprations made by the last Legislature, and the ordinary and current expenses of the year provided by law, and otherwise estimated, have not been paid, within the sum of $33,283.29.

the condition of the School Fund, when present-ed, will merit your special attention, as showing the management and investment of this highest and most sacred trust of the State. Too much case and watchfulness cannot be exer-rised by the Legislature, by the adoption of every practicable precaution, to protect it from loss or seen hazaft and if now dense to the foot loss or practicable precaution, to protect it from loss or even hazard; and if any danger may be reasonably apprehended, that this fund, or any portion of it, may be lost to the State, an examination into the matter should not be delayed. Neither the Legislature or the Executive has at present any legal means of knowing what is the character of these securities. I would therefore suggest to the Legislature the propriety of providing for the appointment of a suitable commission to make peronal and rigid examination of the titles to t sonal and ligid examination of the titles to the lands mortgaged to secure these loans in the different Counties where they have been made, and report at such time, and in such manner as it may be deemed expedient. It may be, that further Legislation is necessary to require the Board to be more certainly assured of the goodness and validity of titles to the lands offered in security, than is now required, before making loans upon them. If so, such Legislation should at once be supplied.

The Board of Regents of the State University, The Board of Regents of the State University, herewith present to the Legislature, their fourth annual report, exhibiting in a clear and concise manner, the progress, condition and wants of the institution-under their charge. To this report, and to the well advised suggestions therein contained, relative to the administration of its affairs, your attention is particularly invited.

To carry out the clear intent and meaning of that clause of the Constitution relating to this abject, and the beneficent objects of the department, I hope the Legislature will see proper to tavor their request for aid for the completion of the building, and the perfection of the organization of the Normal department of the University.

It seems to be the manifest design of the law under which the University is organized, and the purposes and objects of the Normal department is not so much a necessary part of the University organization, as it is an adjunct and auxiliary to the common school system, the charge of which is generously assumed by the authorities of the University—its design and object being singly, to quality teachers for the common schools. Their request for hid, therefore, to perfect and support this department from the common schools. Their request for id, therefore, to perfect and support this department from the common school fund, seems to be reasonable and just.

In receiving the generous grant of the government of a large and ample fund for the support of common schools, and by the express terms of our Constitution, we have committed ourselves to the policy of Free Schools. Our system, then, is a system of Free Schools, and we have but one system, into however many different departments it may be divided for convenience and efficiency, and this is made an institution of the whole State, but reference to sections or localities, and in-that reference to sections or localities, and in-led to benefit all classes—the poor as well as the rich, and that too without respect to religious distinctions.

In these respects, this object presents itself to us essentially different, from an application for aid from the State to benefit institutions of learning, or of any thing else, local in their character, and under the control of private persons or corporations. The loaning of the school fund to individuals upon landed accurities, under our present law, is, to say the least, questionable policy; not only on account of its great liability to less in many cases, but because also, it is only partial in its benefits. Those only, who are rich and able enough, or rather those who are the owners of enough, or rather those who are the owners of land sufficient to give the requisite security, can obtain any portion of it. It is true this immense

This Report shows that the income of the School Fund, apportuned Feb. 10th, 1851, amounted to over $30,000, and that the amount pert to be apportuned will exthat the amount next to be apportioned will extend the amount next to be apportioned will exceed $70,000. The number of scholars attending school in 1849 was reported at 32,174. The number reported for the past year is 78,944, because increase of over 100 per cont. For other valuable statistical information relating to the common schools of the State, I refer you to said

By inspection of the report of the "Board of Public Works" of the Fox and Wisconsin River Improvement, it will be seen, that there was received by the present Treasurer from the Treasurer of the previous year, on the fifth day of March, 1851

Lands yet unsold and subject to entry.

From the report of the present Board, it will appear that during the last year at least, this Improvement has been as economically and judiciously managed as could be required. But the manner in which the large amount of the proceed of previous sales of this grant has been expended, I am not able, from the short examination I have given this subject, to inform you.

It would sean advisable that a rigid investigation of the condition of this Improvement be made without delay, that it may be 'ascertained who desorves the credit for the management, or who should bear the responsibility for the mismangement of this large and valuable trust fund; and if it should be found that this fund, or any portion of it has been squandered, embezoled, or otherwise misapplied, those involved in the guilt should be at once proceeded against for the offence defined in the 28th Section of the art relating to this Improvement. The Legislature will passed to the premises as may be thought necessary and proper. rought nece-sary and proper.

1851, His Excellency Gov. Dewey, on behalf of the State, accepted the proposition, and entered into contract with Norgan L. Martin, Esq. on the 14th day of May, 1851, for the Improvement of the Fox River between Lake Winnebago and Green Bay, since which time there has been issued to said Martin for labor done upon said confract, by the Board of Public Works, scrip to the amount of $26,000 00, appended to which are the signatures of the Governor and Secretary of State, and the Green Seal of the State. Said scrip and certificate are in the following form, as taken from the contract:

of the Board of Public Works.

By the Governor. _____, Sccretary of State. It will be a proper subject for your inquiry, whether the issuing of this scrip in the above form, is not in violation of the original grant from the Government, as well as the 10th section of the finance article of our State Constitu tion, and whether the good faith of the State is not thereby pledged for its ultimate payment.—
I cannot see that it is anywhere contemplated by the grant, that this Improvement shall ever pass into the hands or under the control of cacditors who may have advanced money to construct it, and in this manner the State hecome directed of its authority over its authority over its authority over its

and in this manner the State Recome divested of its authority over it.

The report of the Adjutant General of the State, on the subject of military affairs, has not yet transpired, and I cannot therefore lay before you any particulars in relation to this department. In consideration of this subject, however, it is humbly submitted, that unless this general organization of the militia promises to afford benefits proportionate to the complicated and various duties, expenses and consumption of time it involves, or unless required by some present necessity, the policy of its continuance may well be questioned.

sity, the policy of its continuance may well be questioned.

It is highly proper and commondable to encourage the organization of independent military companies, upon the principle of voluntary enlistment; but may not the time and money required for this general organization, be more profainably employed, for the present at least, in cultivating the arts of peace?

Your attention is specially invited to the report of the trustees of the "Institution for the Education of the Blind." From the very worthy and humane objects of this institution, their appeal fin and from the State, will doubtless meet with a favorable response from the Legislatine.

In pursuance of an act of the last session of the Legislatine, His Excellency, Governor Dewey, appointed three Commissioners to locate the State Prison. Whereupon said Commissioners, or a majority of them, proceeded to examine several localities, and located the Prison at Wampun, in the County of Dodge. The report of a majority of said Commissioners, as well as the minority report of A. W. Worth, Esq. the other Commissioner, are herewith presented, and your attention invited.

Commissioner, are herewith presented, and your attention invited.

Appreciating, as I do, the many and superior advantages of a residence, and a common interest, with the people of Wisconsun, and believing that as a State, in point of soil, clinate, mineral wealth, water communication, and position, as well as health, means of Education, and of a rapidly increasing population of intelligence, industry and enterprise, we possess great natural actilities and numerous blessings—I would desure to see such a State Policy adopted, as would make available all our resources, and means of improvement, and render us, to as great an extent as possible, independent of all foreign aid, except the benefits of markets and commerce. benefits of markets and commerce.

I would therefore advise the adoption of the

I would therefore advise the adoption of the following measures, as conducive to this end:

1. To Memorialize the Congress of the United States, to cause all the Agricultural lands, within this State to be surveyed, and brought into market, at as low a price, and as speedify as practicable; thereby inducing their occupancy and cultivation, increasing the list of taxable property, and lessening the burden of taxation.

2. To cause all the mineral lands in the State to be surveyed and geologically examined, and offered for sale; thereby encouraging the settlement of this extensive region, and causing these exhaustless mines of wealth to contribute to our common growth and property.

3. To make liberal appropriations for the improvement of our Rivers and Harbors, thereby securing and extending our trade and commerce, securing and extending our trade and commune, improving our markets, and humanely protecting the lives and property of our citizens. improving our markets, and humanely protecting the lives and property of our citizens.

4. To establish at Washington, in connection with the Department of the Interior, an Agricultural Bureau for the encouragement of this great industrial interest of the country, upon which our prosperity so much depends.

5. To obtain, by treaty, or purchase, from the British Government, the free navigation of the St. Lawrence, for our commerce upon the lakes.

The reasons that should urgo Congress to secure this right without delay, are manifold. In this way only, can our Upper Lake transportation compete with the railroads, which, in a short time, will be run from the Atlantic sea board, throughout the country, and which must inevitably so greatly diminish the amount of water travel and carriage by the lakes, that this vast interest will suffer to an alarming extent. If the present condition of things continues, and no better prospects are presented, the immense capital now invested in our lake navigation, will be gradually taken away from it, and diverted to other enterprises, and thus leave the west especially without the benefits of this competition in the carriage of her produce. On the other land, if this right was acquired by our government, and our shipping could have free passage to the ocean, through this avenue, and during the winter season, could be engaged in our coast or foreign trade, while now it lies useless in our harbors and at our wharves, during a considerable portion of the year, this interest would be at once quickened into new life, and the tomage of our lake commerce be vastly increased. The channel Intimately connected with our agricultural interests, at dipport which their success in a great degree depende, is to have a good, sure and convenient if market for the stuple productions of our soil—not a market finetuating and temporary, but as fixed and permaneat, as it is possible, under any circumstances, and as the ordinary relations of supply and demand will allow. Such a market we do not now have out of our own Country. We some times have a foreign demand, when there has been an entire or partial failure of crows in some grain growing country of Europe; but thus is only occasional, and cannot be depended up in, as in the present year, when the harvests abroad have in the present year, when the harvests abroad have in the present year, when the harvests abroad have in the present year, when the harvests abroad have in produce, it becomes us to endcavor to find or vereate such an one at home and within our own country. How then can this great decidentum to be effected? Those parts of the Country not of suitable soil or chinate for agricultural purposes, but yet possessing the capital, the hydraule in power and all other necessary means for manifacturing, such as the New England and some other States, if adoptate production were afforded, would engage largely in this branch of industry, and by the employment of numerous laborates, or on surplus produce, and at the same time we would receive the recipical benefits of their skill, capital and trade. The true comorny of the farmer, is to sell as much, and by as little as he can; and I see no reason why I this is not also the wisest economy for our nation.

Whenever this Country imports an excess, over the exports, we say the balance of trade is against us, or in other would, we are doing a loosing business. The only way to remedy for self defence. A low tarif, or free trade, it they should be adopted by all the Countries within the range of our commercial intercourse, would be far less objectionable. But this can never be expected, for just as soon as one Country adopts this plan, the others would have the stronger interest to continue their Tariff duties at a high standard, so as to axail them-elves of the benefits of a free market in that Country, without being compelled to reciprocate the advantage. It can be easily seen from this, why other Countries are constantly advising us to adopt towards them, the principle of free trade, yet never propose to practice the same principle lowards us.

The amendment to the act, approved Feb. 12th, 1793, relating to persons escaping from their masters, and one of that series of measures passed by the 31st Congress, commonly called the "Compromise Measures," from the effect its passage and enforcement has produced upon the public mind, may well incrit your scrious consideration, as the topressentives of the people of the State.

After a careful examination of the provisions of this law, aside from the question of its constitutionality, I am prepared to express my own opinion, that in many of its features it is highly objectionable and unjust; and I am in favor of either such a radical modification as will take from it, its editors features, or its entire repeal.

ther such a radical modification as will take from it, its edious features, or its entire repeal.

I am aware it is claimed that the passage of this law became absolutely necessary to the preservation of the government; but I am not prepared to concede that the Federal Union has bepared to concede that the Federal Union has become so weak, that its existence depends upon the enactment or repeal of any mere statute, or that we have anived at such a crisis in our history, as requires the continuance of such a law as this, to preserve our Republic from dissolution.—
The authorities of our government are properly called into requisition, and are abandantly efficient for the purpose of enforcing the execution of this law so long as it exists, and by parity of reasoning, it would seem that they ought to be sufficient and competent to reduce any rehelion, that might be the result of its repeal. While out accomplishing any good; and would urge obedience and subjection to this, as well as all other laws so long as they exist and are in force. Such I believe to be the imperative duty of every citizen, under all possible circumstances. Resistance to law, and insubordination to the legally constituted authorities of the country, directly tend to the overthrow of our civil government, the introduction of anachy and misrule, and would be far more dangerous to the public safety, than the enactment or repeal of any law that could be devised.

The fact that a law is repugnant to the public sense

visea. The fact that a law is repugnant to the public sensi The fact that a law is repugnant to the public sense of right and justice, and for this season receives but an unwilling and reductant obedience, is, in my opinion, a strong argument for its mochification or repeal. For the deliberate and enlightened public judgment of the people in this country, is entitled to great confidence and respect.

In pursuance of an act of the last Legislature, the question of "Bank or No Bank" was submitted to a vote of the people of this State at the last general election, and was decided by a Lurge majority in fax or of Banks.

Under the Constitution, the power is thereby given to the pre-ent Legislature, "to grant Bank.

Under the Constitution, the power is thereby given to the pre-ent Legislature, "to grant Bank. Charters or to pass a general banking law, with such restrictions and under such regulations as they may deem expedient and proper for the safety of the Lill holder." The popular result upon this question meets with my condial acquiescence; and I would therefore recommend that the legislature at its present session, take such measures as they may thook advisable to carry to office; this constitutional procession, and as measures as they may think advisable to carry into effect this constitutional provision, and as will comply with the popular wish. Although "the power" is given "to grant bank charters," I would not advise the creation of Banks in this form, being opposed to all class and special legislation. The voice of the people having been so recently expressed upon this subject. I doubt not, it will be properly and duly regarded by the Legislation.

in win or properly and day regarded by the Legislature.

In framing a banking law, every safegured and precaution should be trade to insure the safety of the bill holder, and no basis less safe than United States or State Stocks, deposited at the lowest could not market value, and paying interest promptly, should be made the security of Bank circulation. Banking upon such a principle, I believe would be both sate and practicable.

In the entire absence of legislation upon thisabject, some provision should be made at the present session, for procuring stationery for the Legislature and State Departments. This duty seems to have been performed be rectore, by the Eventive office, by common consent, without any authority of law, and it is not the wish of the present Eventive to have the change and trouble pre-ent Executive to have the change and trouble of this matter, added to the already great multi-plicity of duties that properly belong to the Ex-ecutive office

The amount of our annual county expenses and the consequent banden of taxation under our present system of Town and County government, requires, in my opinion, a radical change of the system. The expenses and taxes of the different system. The expenses and taxes of the different counties in the State, I am confident would be greatly diminished, by the adoption of the Com-missionersystem of Ohio or indiana, a place of our present organization, besides being less complicat-ed and more efficient.

It will be your duty at the present session to apportion and district snew the Members of the Senate and Assembly according to the number of inhabitants of the Sinte, under the enumeration made by the authority of the United States in the year 1850.

provement could be demonstrated to be of utility and importance to my section of the country, in a very short time all the public lands in the State would be absorbed and engrossed by numberless projected internal improvements, each under the management of special and private companies, and all requiring the supervision of the State Government. The companies having charge of these tamots works, would, or might, consider it for their interest to make such a high approximent of these gravits as would necessarily keep them a long time out of market, and prevent their occupancy and settlement. In the mean time, in order to obtain the requisite means to commence and carry on these works, they might see fit to issue and carry on these works, they might see fit to issue houds, scrip, or other evidences of debt, making the-elands the basis of their credit and security, and by their sale and negotiation in a foreign market, have the effect to place these lands in a measure under the control of non-resident money speculators.

measure under the control of non-resident money speculators.

The most and unappropriated public lands within our limits are, in the main, situated in the northern and north-western portions of the State, and nearly alkalong the line, or in the vicinity of the great Fox and Wisconsin rive; thoroughfare. All that section of the State, is locally and peculially interested in their speedy sole, occupancy and improvement. Grants may be asked and obtained for the purpose of constructing works in other and distant parts of the State, in which they are but little, if at all, interested, and it would dertainly be a narrow policy to thus attempt to build up and improve one section, at the expense, and perhaps to the injury of another. It is true, that portion of the State immediately benefitted by the work might thereby become settled cultivated, and enriched, but the other section lying in the vicinity of the granted lands, would long remain a waste, unimproved and unoccupied and perhaps embarrassed by a non resident curreraile. Another serious objection to these grants in their tendency to create immense and dangerous monopolies within the State.

The accumulation of wealth by individual in-ated by gifts and grants from the government and empoying special privileges, are antegonist to the spurit of our institutions and should not leucouraged. If the State, by Legislation, shou impose stringent safe guards, conditions and restrictions upon the disposition of these trusts, and not submit them wholty, or even partially, to the control of the companies to be benefited, it is to be presumed, but few of the grants would be added or sought.

In order to secure efficiency and progress, these companies must and should have the full control of all the operations of their improvement and the sole management of all its financial concerns, and the disbursement of the proceeds of these grants would be a necessary incident to the full exercise of their corporate powers. But suppose these Legisletive conditions and restrictions would be both proper and practicable. In that case an amount and exponsibility of legislation would be imposed upon the State, both burdensome and illegatimate, if not unconstitutional. At the same time it is appointment of nuncous officers for the safe keeping and disbursement of these immensities of the funds in their own hands, and responsible to the State, thus creating a vast and dansible to the State, thus creating a vast and dansible to the State, thus creating a vast and dansible to the State, thus creating a vast and dansible to the State, thus creating a vast and dansible to the State, thus creating a vast and dansible to the State, thus creating a vast and dansible to the State, thus creating a vast and dansible to the State, thus creating a vast and dansible to the State, thus creating a vast and dansible to the State, thus creating a vast and dansible to the state of the security of the state of the security of the s out of the fundament near own mands, and respon-sible to the Sixte, thus creating a wast and dan-gerous power of government patronage, while at the same time these improvements thus placed made the care and supervision of the Sixte would be merely of local and sectional bene-If these lands should at once be surveyed

The products of the North and North-west would have products of the North and Sorth-Well would have to, of necessity, come to, or pass through the av-enues of the Central, Southern and Eastern por-tions of the State, on then way to market, thereby creating a flourishing and mofitable internal com-micree and interchange, of immense advantage to all parts of the State, and that part now occupied all parts of the State, and that part now occupied would not long remain, as at present, the out-post and limit, but be situated upon the very line of trade and travel., When we shall have developed the agricultural resources of our State, and made our products an object to the buyer and the carrier, we shall doubtles be furnished with all the requisite faculties for taking them to the best and quickest market. If our true interests as a State are properly reguled, our farmers, in a short time, will have a stribus capital, like the farmers in the older States, to invest in Rail Road and other profitable stock improvements, within our own State; and that too, perhaps long before the public works sought to be benefitted by these Government grants shall have been completed, or some of them commenced. It would be a better and a wiver policy for us, if practicable, to ask of Congress against to the State of a portion of these lands, to aid in the improvement of our Rivers and Harbors, and make these natural communications we already have, and in which the whole State are alike interested, available, and tender our improvement and to the state of the land of the state of the public works. are alike interested, available, and tender our im-trense Lake corst on the North and East, secure to life and property. the General Government, for the benefit of schools and for the improvement of the Fox and Wisconsin rivers, the proper management and security of which requires much legislation, and constant vigilance. We should demonstrate our ability to take care of these beneficent grants, before seekaing others of a less general benefit I would much prefer that the General Government would reduce the price of our vacant lands to simply corer the cost of their survey and sale, and bring them at once into market, as an inducement to emigration from the more densely populated parts of our own country, and from foreign countries; and in this way, add to the population, wealth, and productive labor of the State; and subdue and cultivate this rich domain, than that they should be granted to companies in large parcels, to build up sectional interests and subserve private purposes. Our State presents greater inducements to emigration from abroad than any other, from the consideration that our lands are cheap and rich, and that here they can find space sufficient to be in neighborhood with their own countrymen, and the great number of our present population of foreign birth affords the assurance that thousands upon thousands more will come and settle in our State. They will bring with them to our own people, an industry and enterprise that will some he even and Personally, I may be, as an individual interested in a policy different, in many respects, from that indicated in this communication. Be that as it may, I believe it to be the highest and most so-cred dairy of the citizen, when invested with public good. The office I now hold, I regard as a trust confided to my hands by the people of this State, and that trust I shall endeavor to discharge independently, faithfully and impartially, for the best interests of the whole State, without respect to localities or sections, and unbiassed by private, or political friendship, or dislikes. I am not conscious of having made any compromises of my own private sentiments for the purpose of obtaining this position, and I am not aware of being committed in favor of any local, partisan, or private interest, in the conduct of the internal and domestic affairs of the State. The Constitution of the state requires the Executive "to take care that the laws be faithfully executed," and I shall avoid no responsibility that may be incurred by the discharge of the obligation imposed by this provision, with promptness and energy.

Hoping that, as the representatives of the people of Wisconsin assembled to devise and enact their laws, your counsels may be harmonious, and be controlled by a patriotic sense of duty, I tender you my hearty co-operation in protecting the interests and defending the hone of the State. der you my hearty co-operation in protecting the interests and defending the honor of the State.

Brainl Treatment of the Irish Exiles in Van Diemen's Land. A letter from one of tLose unfortunate gentlemen, the Irish exiles in Van Diemen's Land, was published in the Action of Saturday last, giving the particulars of the brutal treatment to which three of them were subjected by Sir Win. Deniers on's orders, for committing the crime of visiting Mi.W.S. O'Brien after his release from solitary confinement. Now that the popular mind in England appears so smitten with adminition of revolutionary heroes, it may be well to recollect that there are other "martyrs," besides those of Naples and Hungary who have at least usgood a claim to sympathy, but who have received from the government which affects so great borror of Austrian and Neapolitan cruelty the hardest and most brutal usage. We copy the following extracts from Mr. P. O'Donohoe's letter in the Action :—

May 7th, 1851.

"You are aware, then, that I was arrested in bed on the 24th December, 1859. Christmas Eve. I had then three ribs broken, and was very sore.— From the day of my arrival the house was crowded with police constables watching me in bed, and a government physician in daily attendance, to cettify when I might be safely removed.

"Pleasant Christmas holidays! I remained in this state fourteen days; but having heard that O'Doherty and McMannus had been sent to their penal station in Tasman's Peninsula, I resolved that sick or well, I should be removed, lost it should be said I acted as a coward, or was shrinking from danger. Full of those feelings, I sent word to the comptroller that I was ready for removal. Wheteupon, on the 8th of January, 1851, I was taken at five o'clock in the morning in custody to the prisoners' barracks of Hobart Town, stripped of my clothee, and dressed in the convict grey uniform—they even took off my shint, and put on me a fithy chequer one—and conveyed me to a government steamer, and placed me on board with thirty robbing, thiering, murdering convicts. The distance we had to sail was about eighty miles. Tasman's Peninsula is situate at the courte of the Isthmus. On this peninsula is the penal station of Port Arthut. There are three other out tations on the peninsula, but not co acrete. The "Cascades" where M'Maous was sent, is one of those stations. "Impression Bay," where O'Doherty was sent, is nother of them. "Saltwater River" nanother station. To this I was at first sentenced, but, on second thoughts, the government ever show to their victims, indurg me so very ill, sent me to Port Arthut, the soverest penal settlement under the British crown. Little did they know how konored I felt at this heartless and inhuman sentonce. This was the spot where they sought to take the life, by slow to the property of the policy and the property and they know how knoored I felt at this heartless and inhuman sentonce. This was the spot where they sought to take the life, by slow bartles and inluman sentones. This was the spot where they sought to take the life, by slow totures, of the noble-hearted O'Brien, and thither I was bound to go, there to suffer, and to live, or die. "Having marched the nine miles, and arrived at Port Arthur, without food or drink all day, I was placed in a black hole, and kept there three hours, when a doctor and ordered me to hospital, he having found are broken ribs still lad and unknut. At the of ten days I was quite well, and ordered into a gang chain to work. They first took me to a convict, storeroom, stripped me of the grey clothing, and dressed me in black and yellow-striped clothes, which is termed the magpie dress. I got a leathern cap, which they call a commissary, and strong, clumsy shoes, without stockings. Thus equipped, I was numbered with the figures 147, and placed in a haid labor chain gang.

The gangs were marched to their work at half-past five o'clock in the morning. We worked till 8, and were marched in to bleakfast, when we got some coarse brown bread and a pint of skilly.—Skilly is made of cearse flour and water, without salt. After breakfast we mustered again, and were marched back to our work, where we continued till twelve o'clock; then we were marched to dinner, when we got some coarse broth and blead, with a very few ounces of very bad ment—mustered again, and marched to work till 6 o'clock—brought to prison again, rank and file—general muster—names called over—stood in columns with legs bate and uncovered (this was the most insulting and degrading scene in the vile discipline)—got some brown bread and skilly—to prayers at half-past six, prayed i'll seven—then to school—remained at school till eight, listened to atrocious lectals of crimes of every enominity—after school rectals of crimes of every enormity—after school to the "bunks."

This is a short account of the day's life at Port Arthure—multiply it by 97, and you will form a sort of estimate of what I had to endure. During the early part of my time I was kept sowing, digging ground, and sowing vegetables. It was brolling hot weather, and to be kept seventeen hours out of every twenty-four standing, under a blazing sun, was hard enough. I remember one day being marched eight miles into the bush with a scythe to cut down grass, the it up, load a bullock dray with it, and then walk eight miles, back, and never taste food or drink all the wille. certals of crimes of every enormity-after school lock dray with it, and then walk eight miles, back, and never taste food or drink all the while. I presume the Whig press, including the London Examiner, will call this "marchial treatment."—During the latter days of my sentence I was put to becom-making. This was considered a put to be some making. This was considered a structule.

"While undergoing my be som making probation I had to go into the bush at half part five of clock in the morning, with a sickle in my hand, cut down a load of "cutting grass," he it up, carry it three miles on my back to a hut, then cut down New Zealand flax, split it up, make twisted gads, of it, then sit down and make twenty-four besoms, the them up, and carry them on my back, and deliver them to the store-keeper; and if it were one short of that number I should go into hole for solitary confinement. This was the most Opinion. Motion for summons to lesue in this cause, overnuled.

"When I found that the government had determined upon my removal into the interior, I offered to resign my ticket of leave and go into the prison again, provided they permutted me to be assigned out, as a common probation pass-holder-servant. But the government refused! stating that their instructions from the Colonial office was, that we should have tickets of leave on giving our parole; and yet they drive me into the wilderness, where tickets of leave are of no earthly advantage.—Yours most affectionately, SINGULAR CHROMSTANCE.—The Memphis Enquirer relates the following curious and interesting occurrence:—"Since the commencement of the term of the Circuit Court for the County, it became accessary for Merriweather, brother of the gentleman some time since nurdered in our County, to attend as prosequent of Peterson the the gentleman some time since murdered in our County, to attend as pro-ecutor of Peterson, the perpetuator of his horrible erime. It so happened that he rode the horse that his deceased brother was tiding on the day of his murder by Peterson. He was in the company of some friends and traveled the same road. The horse is a very fine spirited bay, docile in temper, and with an intelligent eye. When they approached near the scene of the murder, the horse manifested evident signs of alarm and restlessness. Observing the singular conduct of the horse, Merriweather determined to give him the rein and watch his movements. As he approached near the spot of the murder, he give him the rein and watch his movements. As he approached near the apot of the murder, he elevated his head and tail, and appeared to be watchful and frequently uttered the snort peculiar to spirited horses when apprehensive of danger. The noble animal finally smelt the ground and trailed the course which the body of his former master had been conveyed by his murderer. He finally reached the spot, smelt the grounds, and pawed and snorted. He then took a circle in the woods, at a moderate trot, returned to the place. woods, at a moderate trot, returned to the place where the body was found, and repeated the same ceremony. This he did several times in succession. And when reined up it was with great reluctance, that he was forced to leave the place. Is this instinct, reason, or what is it?

"P. O'Doxonor."

The weather is again piercing cold, the thermometer standing this morning 10 degrees below zero.—Madison Argus.

Effects of the French News upon the Market The London Punch thus discourses upon this

"Our news from France has spread gloom over the funny market; and the threatened exclusion of French plays has created a panic among the dealers in dramatic stuffs and small piece-work.

As the burlesque orders are now in the course of execution, there has been a biskness in the demand for puns of an average quality; but the supply is limited in consequence of scarcity of the raw material. The head of a well known face-rious furn was in the market, all last week, but supply is limited in consequence of scarcity of the raw material. The head of a well known facetious firm was in the market all last week, but there were very few bone fide transactions, and those were of an insignificant character. Conundrums were heavy, at a fraction lower than the previous rates, and several hondred weight of damaged puns changed hands at a small diminution in prices. An order came in during the day for five thousand articles, equal to the following samples: 'Why is a man that does not bet as bad as a man that does? Because he's no better.' The commission was taken by the respectable firm of Wagg & Co., at 23c, which is somewhat under the old figure.

There have been one or two small failures in the Furmy Market during the week, but the transactions of the parties were so small that their paper had scarcely any circulation. Their chief issue had been in conundrums, which could not be answered on their being offered for that purpose. One of these consisted in a denonal—'Why will these be no reason to make a tunnel in the neighborhood of Islington?' An attempt was made to meet this demand in the following desperate manner: 'Because there's a Halloway there already!' The parties to whom this was offered refused their acceptance, and an 'immediate determination to wind up the concern was arrived at. It would have been obviously quite impossible to have goue on, with nothing more solid than this with which to meet accruing liabilities. An application is to be made inamediately for protection, which is really much required, as there is much indignation agains those involved in this lament-ble failure.'

Milwauer & Mississiff R. R. Company.—At a meeting of the Directors of this road, held on Wednesday last, Hon. John Catlin was elected President in place of Byron Kilbourn. The friends of this road will rejoice to hear of this, as the election of Mr. C. will give a new impetus to the enterprise. Mr. Catlin has the confidence of the people, and consequently those interested will be more willing to step forward and aid in advancing this important work.—Madison Statesman.

DEATH OF GEORGE SANIN.—An estimable Citizen has been taken from our midst. George Sawin, after an illness of a few days, died on Saturday morning last in the 40th year of his age.

Mr. S. had been a resident of this place about three years, and was universally known and respected by our citizens. In every enterprise for the intellectual and moral improvement for the community, he was a prominent actor.— Watertown Chronicle.

Fire.—About three o'clock yesterday morning, a fire broke out in a dwelling on Ohio street, between Dearborn and Clark, North Side, which together with the house adjoining, was totally consumed. One of the buildings was owned and occupied by Mr. Gill, and the other was occupied by Dr. Semple.

Most of the furniture, we learn was saved—Chicaco Dem. 14th inst.

Chicago Dem., 14th inst.

Heavy Hoes—Mr. Kennedy, of Aurora, we think, is descring of the credit of raising one of the best lot of hogs in the State. There were twenty-seven, fattened by himself, the average weight of which was 484 pounds each. They were bought by Sylvester Marsh, of this city, at a fraction less than six hundred dollars—Chicago Dem., 14th inst.

John Nutter, of Sullivan, in this county, returned from California about a month since. We are told that he brings a $6,000 "pile," and that he is now making preparations for removing his family to the land of gold and daggers.—Water-town Chronicle.
